James Brown Sentenced To Serve 4 to 23 Months In County Jail

BENSALEM TWP. CASE

Judge Keller Tells Defendant He Must Leave County After Jail Term

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 9 — A 35-year-old garbage collector who molested a 16-year-old Bensalem township girl in the haymow of a barn on her father's farm, pleaded guilty yesterday before Judge William H. Keller in the Bucks county court here.

The accused, James Brown, a native of Norfolk, Va., who came to Bucks county and got a job collecting garbage, was sentenced to pay a fine of $5 and costs and serve four to 23 months in the Bucks County Prison on a charge of assault and battery.

"When you get out of jail you are going to get out of Bucks County in a jiffy," Judge Keller commented. Brown was arrested by State Trooper Keith Dane, of the Langhorne sub-station.

A number of husbands were before the court yesterday for failure to comply with support orders.

Nicholas Mandie, an East Greenville foundry worker who earns $100 a week when he works, was committed to jail for contempt when he refused to co-operate with the court and the probation officer.

Robert Quarrels, Bristol, employed at a well known Bristol plant, makes $50 per week but he was $50 in arrears on an $8 per week support order for his wife, Judge Keller was informed yesterday. The court ordered Quarrels to pay his wife, Mary, $18 per week starting at once, to include $10 weekly on the arrearage.

Ernest Zorger, Altoona drycleaner, was committed to the County Prison for contempt when he could not agree on any way to pay his wife $15 per week and a back arrearage of $435.

John R. Uknes, 38, of 51 Ward Avenue, Trenton, N. J., a wallpaper designer for a Philadelphia concern, whose take-home pay averages $75 per week, was directed to pay $30 per week support order to his wife—including a flat order of $25 and $5 per week on arrearages. James E. Callen, Langhorne, who earns $10 a day as a roofer, was directed to pay a $6 a week support order to his wife, which includes payment of a big arrearage.

Speaks for Tenants

PRESIDENT of the New Jersey Tenants' Council Harry Mopsick of Linden, N. J., testifies before the Senate Banking Committee, in Washington, which is considering an extension of the rent control law. Mopsick pleaded for "adequate protection" for renters. Various Senators have warned that the present fight on the bill to limit Senate debate might prevent Congress from extending the rent law, which expires March 31. (International)

Activities of Interest To All In The Various Communities

GLEANED BY SCRIBES

When John Mayers, Bridge Valley, made his milk deliveries there on Monday, he wore a red shirt and red hunter's cap, because he doesn't want to be mistaken for a crow. While making a delivery about 7:30 on Saturday morning, the milk man heard bullets whiz by his head and land in a tree. He was telling Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Schwartz, about it, when some more bullets whizzed by him and struck a tree less than ten feet from where the trio were talking. "Thoroughly aroused, Mr. Schwartz notified the Doylestown sub-station of the Fenna State Police. Mayers, who first detected the bullets whistling about him while delivering milk while he was walking up a lane, was afraid to drive his vehicle because of the danger of being shot through the windshield or body of the truck.

One of the largest public auctions of cows and farm machinery held in Perkasie area for many years took place Saturday.

A SUMMARY OF THE NEWS

Two bills, with heavy penalty clauses, to curb Communist activity in this country and the party's liaison with Russia were introduced in Congress yesterday. In Albany, the Assembly passed, 148 to 2, the McMullen Bill, barring Communists from civil service and teaching positions.

Education, President Truman said in accepting an honorary degree from Rollins College, is the world's best weapon against communism and fascism.

More than half the prospective jurors in the trial of eleven leading American Communists were excused for personal reasons when Federal Judge Medina began to impanel a jury in New York City. The City Council changed its scheduled meeting time to permit Councilman Davis, one of the defendants, to attend its sessions while he is on trial.

The Government will show a special grand jury today papers allegedly taken from the purse of Judith Coplon, Department of Justice employee, when she was arrested with Valentin A. Gubitchev, Russian aide in the United Nations Secretariat, on charges of suspected espionage.

MAKING SURVEY OF HOUSING IN COUNTY

Office of Housing Expeditor Gathering Much Factual Information

WORK UNDERWAY

A routine survey of the housing situation in Bucks County is being made under the direction of the National Office of the Office of Housing Expeditor, Area Rent Director Joseph T. Turchi announced today.

He said that the survey is being made by Robert Cornell, working out of the Regional Office of the OHE. He explained that the survey is in line with the provision of the Federal Rent Law assigning to the National Housing Expeditor continuing responsibility to investigate in all rent controlled areas throughout the country. Similar surveys are being made in all areas in the country under rent control. "The survey will obtain factual information on the housing supply and the housing demand in Bucks County," Mr. Turchi, Area Rent Director explained. "In addition to obtaining figures on population,

Firemen Escape Serious Injury; Truck Ditched

Six Bristol firemen, members of America Hose, Hook & Ladder Co. No. 2, narrowly escaped serious injury yesterday afternoon, when responding to an alarm in Falls township. Arthur Bolton was at the wheel of the older piece of apparatus and when turning into the Tullytown road north of Emille road, the machine was ditched. William Bell, Jr., one of the crew, injured his nose as he was thrown heavily against a supporting bar which he was grasping while standing on the rear step of the machine. Bolton was forced to make a sharp left turn at the road intersection to avoid striking a pole, and in doing so the machine went into a deep ditch. One headlight was broken. The fire burned grass and a small outbuilding.

WALLET "LOST" IN PHILA. TWO WEEKS AGO FOUND BY CROYDON MAN AS IT FALLS OUT OF HIS POCKET IN THEATRE HERE

A wallet lost two weeks ago in a Philadelphia business college was found Monday evening in a Bristol theater, when a patron of the theater felt something slide down his leg as he attended a movie here. This story is one for the book and as related by Police Officer Farragall is as follows:

Monday evening the Bristol police received a call from Clifford Wendell, Pennsylvania avenue, Croydon, who informed the officers that he and his wife had attended the Bristol theater and that while viewing the film he felt something slide down off his leg. Reaching for the object he found that it was a wallet. Thinking that it was his wife's and that he would play a joke on her, making her believe that she had it, Wendell said nothing. Arriving home he opened the wallet only to find that it did not belong to his wife but had the name of Richard Kazigian, 1201 Pratt st., Phila., inside along with $12 and identification cards. Wendell telephoned Kazigian and a woman answered and stated that Richard Kazigian was her son but that he was not at home at present. She said that she would have him call Wendell upon his return. When asked if her son had been in Bristol "tonight" her reply was "no."

MAJORITY RULE

When President Truman remarked, the other day, that a simple majority of the U. S. Senate ought to have power to change the Senate's rules, it was stupid politics. As statesmanship, it was still worse.

This is another instance of the President's habit of "off the cuff" statements — the off-hand comments which have been upsetting his apple-cart ever since he took office.

Politically, the effects were instantaneous. Up to then, it appeared that the President had a good chance to put his "equal rights" program through Congress, despite the opposition of the Dixiecrat Southerners.

The necessary first step, of course, was to modify the open debate provisions in the Senate's rules, in order to head off the expected Southern filibuster against the civil-rights laws.

The White House lobby had been busy since the start of the session, putting the thumb on every possible Democrat to keep him in line to vote against filibusters. A good deal of persuasion had been brought to bear on Republicans as well. Prospects were excellent that the anti-filibuster forces would be able to muster the two-thirds majority needed to push these rule-amendments through.

But when the President declared that a simple majority ought to be sufficient to make such changes in the rules the situation altered immediately. The Senators who were "on the fence" climbed down at once — against the President. Many who were half-committed to vote against filibusters reversed themselves. Hardly any member of the Upper House was willing to open the doors to the sort of steam-roller tactics which would result inevitably if the President's forces, with the bit in their teeth, could change the rules enough so that a bare majority could become dictators in the Senate.

Within a day or so, the President's Senate lobby became so discouraged that they gave up, for the present and hinted quietly that the civil-rights program would be postponed until much later in the session. Probably, that means the program will lie on the shelf until next year, at least.

SCHOOL BOARD TAKES ISSUE WITH TEACHERS

Claims Teachers Statement Gave Rise to False Impression

MAKES EXPLANATIONS

Says 31 Teachers Will Receive An Increase of $350

Bristol Borough Public School Board through its secretary, Paul V. Forster, today, released for publication a statement dealing with a recent statement made by the Bristol Teachers Association upon the salary increase question. The statement given in full here follows:

The statement recently published in the Courier by spokesmen for the school teachers in the Bristol Borough schools has given rise to certain wrong impressions in the matter of teachers' salaries. The Board feels these impressions should be corrected.

The statement that "all teachers will not receive an increase of $350" gave the impression that the Board had previously endeavored to make it appear that it had granted all teachers an equal increase of $350. At no time did the Board make any such representation. On the contrary, the article carrying the news of the Board's action on teachers' salaries specifically stated that teachers who were nearing the maximums prescribed by the State law would receive only so much of $350 as would be needed to increase their salaries to those maximums. By actual count, 31 teachers will receive an increase of $350; 3 will receive an increase of $290; 22 will receive an increase of $150; and only one, who has already reached the State-mandated maximum will receive no increase. These increases represent a total additional outlay of $17,450 to be made by the School Board for teachers' salaries during the school year 1949-50.

DASIER CREDIT TERMS

Order of the Federal Reserve Board relaxing restrictions on installment buying is expected to have an inflationary effect. If consumers are in the mood, they will find it easier to go into debt for durable goods than it has been in recent months. They will be able to buy with smaller down payments in many instances, and they will have a longer period in which to pay.

Ignoring the question of why Washington should have power to dictate terms of sale of automobiles, refrigerators, etc., in time of peace, there is another side to easier credit that has not been commented upon. If a man buys an automobile and needs 21 months to pay for it, obviously his purchases of other goods will be restricted while he is making the payments on the auto. And the interest charged on time payments is not a minor item.

But this step in easing credits is an admission that the country has been having more deflation than the Federal Reserve Board bargained for when it imposed the restrictions—or at least more than it now finds comfortable. In the circumstances, it is pertinent to ask whether Congress should give the President the formidable array of economic controls he wants.
Surely the argument that they are needed to control inflation has been deflated.

Many of the controls sought would apply to materials going into consumers' durable goods—
the type of goods that is expected to move faster under the new order. Steel is an example. The President has asked for authority to allocate steel. He has gone further and asked for power to expand steel-producing facilities, by putting the government in the steel business if need be, on the ground that output may be inadequate.

SWISS OFFER TO HELP

Offer of the watchmakers of Switzerland to provide modern watchmaking machinery for the closed-down Waltham Watch Company is a case of enlightened self-interest.

Swiss timepieces have been giving American watchmakers rough competition since the tariff wall was razed by Roosevelt some years ago. That is one of the reasons the Waltham factory closed, throwing 2,300 men and women
out of work.

Offhand, this looks like good news for the Swiss watchmakers.
But the Swiss fear it may be bad news for them when American factories start closing down. They are afraid there may be a demand for a tariff high enough to protect American workmen and their jobs from the ruinous competition of Swiss watches. Swiss watchmakers might be shut out of one of their most profitable export fields.

Whether Swiss fears that their watch industry will not continue to flourish if the watch industry in the United States is ruined are well founded is debatable. But what the Swiss are offering to Waltham is a sort of ECA in reverse.

Majority Rule

Those who voted for the President on the strength of his pledge to set up a national F. E. P. C. now can have the privilege of remembering that it was the President's glib and careless tongue which crippled any early chance of this promise being fulfilled.

So much for politics. In the field of statesmanship, the President's present attitude towards filibusters and majorities is wholly out of keeping with his attitude in the past. It is also quite out of line with the theory and purposes of the American plan of government.

Over and again since Mr. Truman took office, he has been quite willing to see his supporters in Congress block off the majority by use of filibusters. Never on those occasions did he have a word to say against filibustering.

To name a single example, it was a filibuster by the President's friends which headed off a Congressional investigation into the scandalous Pendergast-gang ballot-stealing against former Congressman Slaughter in the President's Missouri bailiwick.
The President's own hands were far from clean in that episode.
The U. S. Department of Justice mysteriously "slow-balled" the prosecution of those responsible. Safe-crackers were singularly fortunate in being able to "steal" all the evidence in a single visit.

If ever there was an election scandal which merited Congressional investigation, that was it. Yet a filibuster prevented it. The President found no fault with this means of escaping embarassment to himself and friends.

There is much confusion in the public mind as to the subjects of "democracy" and "majority rule" under the American Constitution.

It is a serious mistake for anyone to think that the American government was set up as a means of giving the majority their own way, regardless of consequences.

The theory is quite different. It is assumed that the majority can always take care of itself—that it is the minority which needs help. Nearly all provisions of the Constitution must be interpreted in the light of a deliberate intention to protect minority groups and elements from despotism at the hands of the majority.

In a long succession of matters, the writers of the Constitution may be considered as having said to themselves:

"A majority of the members of Congress may be influenced by emotion, or greed, or fear, or political considerations. But it is unlikely that so many as two-thirds can be brought to support measures which are contrary to the national interest.

"In certain matters, therefore, we will arrange that considerably more than half the votes will be necessary.

Cases in which more than a simple majority are necessary to take action are numerous. They embrace a great deal more than merely the question of changing the rules under which the two Houses operate.

Vetoes can be over-ridden only by a two-thirds majority. A two-thirds vote is needed in the Senate to ratify treaties. Likewise, while the House of Representatives can impeach a President on a simple majority, a two-thirds vote in the Senate is needed to convict him and remove him from office.

A great many Americans persist in thinking of Congressional voting in the terms of elections, in most of which a plurality is sufficient to win.

This is misleading. Even in the field of election, many other countries (and indeed, some of our own States,) insist on a majority; and have run-off elections where none of the candidates in the first balloting gets more than half the total votes.

But it would be far better to compare the functioning of the national Congress to that of a jury than to compare it with popular elections.

As everyone knows, all twelve jurors in an ordinary trial must agree before the defendant can be convicted. A single hold-out is enough to "hang" the jury, and, in many cases, permit the prisoner to go free.

Attempting to reach unanimous decisions in legislative bodies is, of course, out of the question. But the principle remains, if a substantial number—a third or more—object to the proposals being discussed, that is considered a good and sufficient reason to defeat any of the matters which come under the two-thirds rule.

Much history would have been different, if the President's idea of a bare-majority rule had been accepted by the men who wrote the American Constitution.

Andrew Johnson would have been removed from office—
the majority in favor of his removal was 35 to 19.

President Truman would have been the most over-ridden President in history. Times almost without number, a majority of Congress has voted against his vetoes—but only in a relatively few cases has the necessary two-thirds been reached.

President Truman can't really believe what he implied in his off-hand comment—that a simple majority ought to be enough to transact Congressional business.

He has had scant respect for majorities in Congress at any time—just as little under Democratic rule as when the Republicans were in power.

He had overruled the majority sentiment in Congress more times than you can count, and has never hesitated to veto measures he disliked, even after they had been passed by a four or five-to-one majority.

For that matter, ever since he was re-elected last fall, he has been so cocky, and has talked so much about having a "mandate," that one would assume he had won in November by a huge majority—by a terrific landslide.

There is a certain brazenness about his references to majorities which is disconcerting, when one remembers he is actually a "minority" President. He got fewer votes than the combined vote cast against him.

And he also got the smallest percentage of the total eligible vote of any President in recent times. Only about one in every four qualified voters cast their ballots for him. The great majority of American voters—three-fourths of them—didn't care enough for Mr. Truman to vote for his re-election.

There's nothing difficult about party-line courtesy.
You're courteous when you keep calls reasonably

These courtesies are returned, too. This means

Low Cost Hamburger In Glamorous Dishes

As American as Yankee Doodle's feather is the hamburger! And the variety of ways in which this low cost meat may be served is almost endless. For instance, here's an easy-to-make hamburger recipe with a bit of the Italian flavor. You'll like this juicy hamburger dish with its topping of rich-tasting cheese.

Pizza Hamburgers

1 pound hamburger.
1½ teaspoons salt.
½ teaspoon pepper.
1 cup well drained tomatoes.
½ cup shredded soft cheese.
2 tablespoons chopped parsley.
¼ teaspoon dried basil.
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion.

Mix hamburger with salt and pepper. Put out in a 9-inch pie pan. Spread tomatoes over hamburger and sprinkle with the remaining ingredients. Bake in a moderate oven 375 degrees F., for 15 to 20 minutes. Cut in wedges to serve.

Another hamburger variation is this flavorful pineapple meat loaf. Combine 2 pounds hamburger, 1 beaten egg, 1 chopped pimento, 2 teaspoons salt, ¾ cup crushed pineapple and juice (9 ounce can), and 1 cup bread crumbs. Arrange 3 slices of bacon in the bottom of a meat loaf pan. Pack meat loaf mixture over these. Place 3 more slices of bacon on top of the loaf and bake in a 350 degrees F. oven for 1½ hours.

Hawaii takes the honors for these different tasting hamburgers with a special zip!

Hawaiian Hamburgers
1½ pounds hamburger.
Small bottle soy sauce (3 oz.)
2 tablespoons brown sugar.
¼ teaspoon ginger.

Shape hamburger into 8 patties. Mix other ingredients in a small bowl and stir until sugar is dissolved. In a heavy skillet, heat some fat. Dip hamburgers into soy sauce mixture, drain, and fry in the fat until brown. Salt is not needed in the meat patties as the soy sauce provides all the seasoning needed.

And now we'll let the Irish-Americans have the floor with their hamburger-potato patties. To 1 pound of hamburger add 2 cups grated, raw potatoes, 1 grated onion, 2 teaspoons salt, and ¼ teaspoon pepper. Make six patties and cook in hot fat adding ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce to each patty before turning to brown the second side. . . Or you might try apple-hamburger patties made by mixing the ground beef with ground apples, bread crumbs, onions, egg, and salt and pepper.

Another surprisingly good hamburger mixture is one made with ground nuts. Peanuts give the patties a roasted, toasted flavor. Ground toasted almonds used with the beef make an extra deluxe patty. In using the nuts with the meat, be sure to add just a little grated onion, too, and of course salt and pepper.

An evening hamburger snack which always gets a big hand is deviled hamburgers. Add a little of all of these seasonings to ground beef: Mustard, horseradish,

Rita Castor, Queen, Names R. Gilardi King

By virtue of finding a ring beneath her plate of ice cream at "Mardi Gras" time in Bristol high school last evening, Rita Castor automatically became "Queen of Misrule." She subsequently chose as king, to share her reign, Rodman Gilardi.

It was a gala evening, replete with a catered banquet, viewing of scenes of New Orleans, La., the Mardi Gras city; and general merry-making with dancing as the concluding feature.

Thirty sat down to the festive banquet where turkey was the piece de resistance. The invocation was by vice president of the French Club (the sponsoring organization), Charles Long; with welcome extended by president William A. DiRisa.

The dinner was served in the cafeteria, where the slides of the New Orleans Mardi Gras were also shown by Miss Edwina Sykes, a member of the high school faculty.

Among the faculty members who were guests were: Miss Sykes, Miss Elizabeth Sanger, and Philip B. Frankmore. Miss Anna Bressi, faculty advisor to the club, served as hostess for the evening. Decorations were supervised by Henry R. Kornstedt and invitations were in charge of Earl E. Cochran.

Dancing to recordings took place in the auditorium.

By MARION CLYDE MCCARROLL

MANY a family home in recent years, has, to its own surprise, found itself suddenly having to expand in a way it never dreamed it could to accommodate sons, daughters or relatives who would otherwise be homeless.

Attics, even basements, have been turned into attractively livable apartments, and all kinds of other space has been found to be convertible into practical living quarters.

Sometimes, just one room can be made available to an extra person or persons, and then, if each individual family unit wishes at least a reasonable degree of privacy, bedroom must double as living room, or living room must be turned into sleeping room at bedtime, according to how you think of the arrangement.

If this happens to be the situation, there are things the home owner who is handy with tools can do to make everybody happier.

He might, for example, do as was done in the double-duty room shown here; that is, build in narrow bookcases at one end of the room so that an alcove is formed, then install folding screens that shut off that end of the room into a bed alcove just deep enough to accommodate the length of the bed. A fairly elaborate job has been done in the room pictured, with a lavatory dressing table and toilet, like those in a Pullman roomette, built in at one side of the bed alcove and a large wardrobe with sliding doors on the opposite side. The combination bed headboard and twin night tables was built to order in this instance, but similar pieces are now available in many large stores that handle unpainted furniture and the like.

The color scheme of the room is charmingly unusual, being done in dark blue, pale green and American beauty red. The floor is covered with embossed inlaid linoleum in soft shades of blue, with a pale green rug covering part of it.

A luncheon was served to Mrs. Clyde Hart, Mrs. John Baker, Sr., Mrs. Norman Sleightmaker, Mrs. Harold Heath, Mrs. Leon Milligan, Miss Ellen Milligan, Mrs. Conrad Den Bleyker, Miss Evelyn Den Bleyker, Mrs. Elwood M. retired from farming and has purchased a home in this borough.

During the afternoon 11 head of Holstein cows were sold at prices which ranged from $160 to $335. Bidding on a farm tractor was rather brisk, and it sold for $1,100 and a tractor plow for $110.

During one of the drives for European relief at Perkasie, Miss Elaine Maurer, placed her name and address in the pocket of a garment she donated, and a woman in Germany who received the garment took occasion to write to Miss Maurer.

One of the statements in the communication is that the United States troops have been very kind to the children in Germany. The writer of the letter, Mrs. Ida Hartman, said that everywhere the soldiers went they were surrounded by children because they knew the soldiers had something for them, chocolate, chewing gum, cakes, white bread or cocon. A number of the children, said Mrs. Hartman, never tasted these things.

Activities of the Russian civilian workers, on the other hand, did not come in for a share of praise. In this connection Mrs. Hartman wrote that the city in which she lived was plundered by the workers, who stole cows from the stables and butchered them.

The township has obtained a contract with Yardley Fire Co. for protection.

A request for blueprints of the borough atlas was granted to Robert May, engineer of the Joint Toll Bridge Commission. Borough Secretary William H. Howell will make arrangements for the use and return of the prints.

Howell reported that the state had approved the borough's expenditure program for the motor license fund.

PROFY TEAM CAN CLINCH TITLE IN GAME TONIGHT

The Profy team can clinch the regular season championship of the Bristol Basketball League tonight as it meets the Falls Alumni quintet in the second game of a double-header on the Rohm & Haas court. In the first game, starting at 7:30 o'clock, Rohm & Haas meets the Morrisville Hoopers. Both of the latter teams are out of the running for a playoff position.

Profy's leading the circuit with 9 wins and 4 defeats and has a full game lead on the second place Fifth Ward aggregation. However, there is a tight race for the next three spots, St. Ann's, Hibernians, and Falls Alumni being in a dead-lock.

Neither of the three teams tied for third place can afford to lose their last game this week. Franklin is one-half game behind the group and a win for the Franks, if Falls, Hibs, or St. Ann's loses will force a playoff for the final playoff position. If the Hibernians beat Franklin on Sunday afternoon, then the circuit will be ready to start its playoffs.

Managers Jim Rue and "Fats" Petrino of Profy's will have in their starting lineup: Forwards, Johnny Pindar and "Billy" Gallagher; center, "Johnny" Messenger; guards, "Easy" Mama and Joe Roe. Falls, fighting to clinch a playoff spot, will start Dick Anderson, Roy and Gene Lynch, Frank Thropp, and "Jim" Hoernle.

The most important games of the season will be played Sunday afternoon on the Rohm & Haas floor as Fifth Ward possesses a 7-game winning streak, meets St. Ann's, and Franklin clashes with the Hibernians.

School Board In Statement Takes Issue With Teachers

By repeated use of the term "local effort" the teachers' statement further creates the impression that, since the School Board is required by State law to pay any teacher who has not yet reached the State-mandated maximum an increase of $150.00 any way, the present increase of $250.00 is not really an increase of $250.00, but an increase of only $200.00. Surely no teacher would settle for $200.00, when the increase called for $250.00.

While the State government gives aid toward paying teachers' salaries, through appropriations based on a so-called reimbursement fraction which involves, among other factors, the assessed valuation of real estate for tax purposes, the job of raising the $17,450 needed to meet the increases granted for 1949-50 is still the School Board's responsibility. The State government does not send the Board a check for the State-mandated increases, which in this case amount to $10,125. It is still up to the local School Board to raise a very substantial part of that money through local taxation.

Yet the teachers' statement definitely gives the impression that the School Board's "local effort" extends only to the remaining $7,325, i.e. the increases granted above the State-mandated increments. That is not so. As a matter of fact, there is considerable uncertainty as to what the State legislature is going to do regarding the present reimbursement fraction, all indications pointing to the possibility that the reimbursement fraction will be tied in not with the assessed value of real estate for local tax purposes, but with the actual value of real estate as determined by the prices for which various properties have actually been sold during the past year or two, thereby drastically reducing the amount of the appropriation. Under such circumstances, would it be wise for the Board to commit itself to a long-range program of ever higher teachers' salaries? If granted, the responsibility of raising the necessary funds rests first and foremost upon the shoulders of the local School Board, subject only to such help as an unpredictable legislature at Harrisburg may see fit to give.

Five New Members Are Welcomed by the Cubs

ANDALUSIA, Mar. 9.—The Andalusia Cub Pack, No. 17, at its meeting at the Boy Scout cabin on Friday evening registered five new members. They are: Lawrence Culp, Jr., "Jack" Torpey, Dennis Erickson, Robert Aikens, and Reese Yeagle. Raymond Katzmar, Jr., and J. Hodgkiss were guests.

The Cubmaster, William R. Sterner, expects to start a new den for the Cornwells boys. Cheston Mottershead and Norris Chamberlain left the cubs to enter the Boy Scouts. Before going into the Scout troop, Cheston achieved the highest cub rank that entitled him to the "Webelos" badge, which is a contraction for "We be loyal Scouts."

Wallet "Lost" in Phila. Is Found by Croydon Man

stolen two weeks ago while he was attending the business school. Then Kazigian was told by Wendell that he also attended the same business school.

A further comparing of notes proved that both young men had the same color coats, made in the same style and carrying the same kind of a label.

It was finally decided that a solution to the mystery was that Kazigian in placing his wallet in what he thought was his coat had unknowingly put it in Wendell's coat, where it had remained until the coat had been placed at just the right angle as Wendell was putting it on for it to fall out and slide down Wendell's trousers.

SALEM, Ore., — (INS) — The steel shortage has given a new lease on life to the old Willamette river ferry at Independence. A half-mile-long bridge was scheduled to carry traffic late in 1948, but it is only half finished.

SAVE TIME, ENERGY BY KEEPING THINGS IN DEFINITE PLACE

By Miss Frances Vannoy Home Economics Representative

Today's daughter should be arranging her kitchen and its equipment to save steps, bending and reaching. The daughter keeping her dishes in the cellar stairway just because mother and grandmother kept it there has not become alert to saving her time and energy. Even if you cannot have a new modern kitchen you can do a lot with what you do have.

First take stock of what you have in your kitchen. You might list things under essentials and accessories. Again with those essentials do some sorting especially with the smaller things you use very often, maybe several times a day, others less frequently and others very seldom. There may be duplicates or things in need of repair yet all there to be handled and taking up space.

Once your inventory is made, discard and repair done, you are ready to arrange. A few hooks, partitions in drawers, half shelves, racks can be added by any amateur. They can make things easier to reach, better use of space and save time and energy when working.
